What does Social Innovation really mean?

Social innovation exists in a complex and multidimensional context. To achieve transformative change, it cannot be isolated from its social, political, and economic context. The process of social innovation is influenced by various factors, including the social, economic, and cultural contexts within which it occurs.

Role Boundaries

- Low Innovation in Role Boundaries: Only certain people get to know certain information. Only certain people get to know certain information. Only certain people get to know certain information. Only certain people get to know certain information. Only certain people get to know certain information.
- Medium Innovation in Role Boundaries: There is more provision for collaboration, discussion, and sharing information. There is more provision for collaboration, discussion, and sharing information. There is more provision for collaboration, discussion, and sharing information. There is more provision for collaboration, discussion, and sharing information. There is more provision for collaboration, discussion, and sharing information.
- High Innovation in Role Boundaries: There is complete openness in sharing information. There is complete openness in sharing information. There is complete openness in sharing information. There is complete openness in sharing information. There is complete openness in sharing information.

Group Boundaries

- Low Innovation in Group Boundaries: Boundaries are rigid. Boundaries are rigid. Boundaries are rigid. Boundaries are rigid. Boundaries are rigid.
- Medium Innovation in Group Boundaries: Boundaries are quite flexible. Boundaries are quite flexible. Boundaries are quite flexible. Boundaries are quite flexible. Boundaries are quite flexible.
- High Innovation in Group Boundaries: Boundaries are broken down completely. Boundaries are broken down completely. Boundaries are broken down completely. Boundaries are broken down completely. Boundaries are broken down completely.

Meaning Boundaries

- Low Innovation in Meaning Boundaries: When things go wrong, only a small group of people are being held accountable. When things go wrong, only a small group of people are being held accountable. When things go wrong, only a small group of people are being held accountable. When things go wrong, only a small group of people are being held accountable. When things go wrong, only a small group of people are being held accountable.
- Medium Innovation in Meaning Boundaries: When things go wrong, everyone is held accountable. When things go wrong, everyone is held accountable. When things go wrong, everyone is held accountable. When things go wrong, everyone is held accountable. When things go wrong, everyone is held accountable.
- High Innovation in Meaning Boundaries: No one is held accountable. No one is held accountable. No one is held accountable. No one is held accountable. No one is held accountable.

Decision-Making Boundaries

- Low Innovation in Decision-Making Boundaries: Only a few people make decisions. Only a few people make decisions. Only a few people make decisions. Only a few people make decisions. Only a few people make decisions.
- Medium Innovation in Decision-Making Boundaries: Decision-making processes are more inclusive. Decision-making processes are more inclusive. Decision-making processes are more inclusive. Decision-making processes are more inclusive. Decision-making processes are more inclusive.
- High Innovation in Decision-Making Boundaries: Everyone has a say in decision-making. Everyone has a say in decision-making. Everyone has a say in decision-making. Everyone has a say in decision-making. Everyone has a say in decision-making.

How innovative is your thinking?

The Social Innovation Thoughtscape

Social innovation exists in a complex and multidimensional context. To achieve transformative change, it cannot be isolated from its social, political, and economic context. The process of social innovation is influenced by various factors, including the social, economic, and cultural contexts within which it occurs.